A GREAT WASTE OF WORDS.

The average newspaper is thankful when the national political conventions have passed in to history With intense rivalry among the big metropolitan dailies, there is a demand for yards of reading matter on the conventions, and, catering to this demand, the large news gathering associations send out column after column of gossip and sidelights. One daily boasts of having printed fifteen pages of convention matter, and its rival the next day publishes twenty Ninety per cent of this prolix news is never read.

The Standard is hopeful that event ually these great political gatherings will be covered by the Associated Press at least in a manner to meet the approval of that part of the public that has not the time or inclination to wade through pages of word painting to obtain the gist of the news.

One or two columns of a well written, well digested write up of each day's happenings would be satisfying and be received with thanks.

HOW WAR LOANS ARE TRANSFERRED.

A syndicate of bankers has arranged to make a loan of $50,000,000 to Russla, at 61/2 per cent. The time the loan is run is stated in the dispatch. The money will undoubtedly all be expended in this country, and the loan interest, in dollars in New York, Looking at the loan from one national standpoint, it means a sale to Russia! of American material and labor to the amount of its face, to be paid for for some time in the future in commodisupply what we need to purchase, but otherwise in gold coin. From the banker's standpoint, it is a transaction in credit intended to yield a profit on the bonds or notes purchased. Really, however, this aspect is as "national" as the other. It must not be imagined that these banks are permanently tying up their money in loans to anybody. Most of the money they handle belongs to their depositors and could not be tied up, and if the bankers really kept the bonds which they buy they would soon come to the end of their resources and have to go out of business. The banks buy bonds to sell, and if a bank buys what it cannot sell it goes broke. And for the temporary investment of $50,000,000 it was in this case necessary to bring in three large banks.

Now, of all the belligerents, Russia is best situated for paying debt, because it has a great and thrifty population and incalculable undeveloped resources which will eventualy be turned into money. The situation of Russia in this respect is similar to that of our own country at the close of the Civil War, when we had what seemed to be a huge debt, which was found not to rouble us in the least. The fact is that Russia ought to borrow in time of peace at not to exceed 4 per cent. The evidence of debt given is probably three or five year notes, bearing 61/2 per cent interest. If the actual credit is the full face of the to loan to Russia at 4 per cent they same cent premium, which, on $50,000,000, the war. The figures given are: is $5,000,000, less expenses, net profit
